TUSTIN, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- October 10, 2003-- The National Federation of Republican Women (NFRW) conducted its 2004/2005 election of new leaders using AccuPoll, the voting system that allows voters to select candidates on a touch screen and immediately prints a paper record of the ballot (Proof of Vote) for the voter to verify.

"We had great feedback from our members about how easy it was to cast a ballot using the AccuPoll system," said Heidi Smith, NFRW President. In a survey conducted immediately following the election, over 97% of NFRW voters found the system easy to use.

"The importance and acceptance of the voter verified paper audit trail was clearly embraced by the NFRW voters," said Jo-Ann Zakielarz, Vice President of AccuPoll. "Seventy-seven percent of voters felt more confident that her vote will be recorded accurately and will be counted by having the electronic voting system print a voter verified paper record of the ballot."

AccuPoll, an innovator in the electronic voting industry combines the feature rich capabilities of a touch screen voting system with the confidence of a voter verified paper audit trail. The voter verified paper records are retained by election officials for use in a recount and meet the audit requirement of the Help America Vote Act.
