

Manual Audit Requirements

The following examples illustrate a variety of manual audit requirements in several states using voter-verified paper records (VVPR), as well as two provisions from states that do not (yet) require VVPR¹. Some apply generically to both direct recording electronic (DRE) systems equipped with voter-verified paper audit trails (VVPAT) and optical scan systems, since both offer voter-verified paper records which can be compared to an electronic tally. Others refer specifically to DRE + VVPAT systems (e.g. Washington). In every case (except KY and PA—see note 1 below), the paper record verified by the voter is the one used in the manual count. The quantity of ballots to audit is most often stated as the ballots in some percentage of the total precincts, although some provisions audit by other units (by machine, ballot batches, etc.).

Most provisions were passed in 2005. California, Illinois, Kentucky, Missouri and Pennsylvania passed their laws prior to 2005. Illinois' 2005 bill updates an earlier law by increasing the percentage audit. Minnesota passed an increase in their percentage in 2006; Florida and Oregon passed laws in 2007. The most recent provision to pass is Tennessee's, signed into law on 06/05/2008.

This document may not include all states with mandatory random manual audits. The Verified Voting Foundation continues to research this issue and will post updates to this information as new data becomes available. We welcome input and suggestions.

ALASKA

Manual audit requirement: One precinct accounting for at least 5% of the ballots in that district
Statute or legislative reference: HB94 [Ch. No. 2, FSSLA 2005]; Signed into law 06/24/05²

Language of the audit provision:

Sec. 15.15.430. Scope of the review of ballot counting. (a) the review of ballot counting by the director shall include ... (3) unless the ballot for the election district contains nothing but uncontested offices, a hand count of ballots from one randomly selected precinct in each election district that accounts for at least five percent of the ballots cast in that district. (b) If, following the ballot review set out in (a) of this section, the director finds there is a discrepancy of more than one percent between the results of the hand count under (a) (3) of this section and the count certified by the election board, the director shall conduct a hand count of the ballots from that district.

(c) If the director finds an unexplained discrepancy in the ballot count in any precinct, the director may count the ballots from that precinct.

ARIZONA

¹ Neither Kentucky nor Pennsylvania currently has a VVPR requirement. It is not clear whether --or how-- these states are carrying out the statutorily required audit. In both states, paperless DRE systems predominate. Both states' laws were written several decades ago, before DREs were in widespread use.
